Part II. Detailed Course Information

Justification for the proposal Maximum 80 words

Today's competitive business environment demands a broad knowledge of the interrelated activities of sales management. Integrating personal selling, sales management techniques, and ethics into a comprehensive program of sales management is critical to sustain and grow any business. Technological advancements, cultural changes, and ethical considerations make the study of sales management an imperative for a successful business/marketing student.

Course Description

Provide a brief overview of what is covered during the semester. This information will appear in the printed catalogs and on the web online catalog. Maximum 60 words.

This course is designed for students interested in a career in professional selling and sales management. The course is concerned with how to manage a sales force with the objective of maximizing overall sales performance in terms of both effectiveness and efficiency. The emphasis is on business-to-business (rather than consumer) sales force management. The class uses a discussion based format and requires active participation from the student for each class.

Course Objectives

Explain the aims of the course. Maximum 100 words.

- 1. To develop an in-depth understanding of the tools and techniques used in sales management today.
- 2. To understand the basic functions of sales force management as well as theories and concepts about appropriately managing the sales function to attain firm marketing objectives.
- 3. To improve student critical thinking and communication skills via in class discussion of assigned readings, cases and preparation of written assignments.
- 4. To improve problem solving skills via the application of theories and concepts studied to practical business situations.
- 5. To build the student's ability to work in team-based management systems and to facilitate the team-skills necessary for success in the sales area.

Learning Outcomes

Explain the learning outcomes of the course. Maximum 10 items. 1. Evaluate business and marketing information.

2. Apply technological tools to gather and access information necessary to make business decisions.

3. Identify the interrelationships between various disciplines with respect to sales management and the marketing function.
